Below are a few pertinent paragraphs from it: "The need of a man to 'make up the hedge and stand in the gap' for Jerusalem of old was not a need peculiar to that time and place only, but one that has been felt most keenly in every land and nation. More than that, every organization in existence has been sensible of the lack of a man to stand in the gap.

"There are many gaps in the church that need filling. There are gaps in the preaching services-empty pewsgaps in the Sunday school, in the teaching force, in the prayer meeting, in the family altar. Reunion of Co. D at Glover.

The 37th annual reunion of Co. D 6th Vt. Vols. was held at the home of Comrade Lieut. E. H. Nye, Oct. 5th. At 11 o'clock a. m., the meeting was called to order by the president, E. H. Nye. The place of the next meeting was discussed and Comrade J. G. Stickney extended an invitation to Co. D to meet at his home in Newport Center in October, 1917. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, J. G. sible to undertake a large project, adjourned until 1.45 p. m.

At 11.30 the company assembled at the vestry of the Community church, where a dinner was in waiting, prepared by the Ladies' Union of Glover. The dinner was fine, especially the chicken pie. The vestry was beautifully trimmed with flags and burting, the work being done by our host and hostess. Mention should be made of a beautiful cake presented to Co. D by Mrs. Myrtie Nye Clark of Bradford. The emblem of Co. D was displayed in colored letters on white and sweet cucumber pickle. frosting. Each one at the table sampled the cake and all pronounced it excellent. After dinner Comrade Miller conveyed all to headquarters in his auto. At 1.45 o'clock the meeting was called to order by the president and the roll called. Those present to say "here" were: Lieut. and Mrs. E. H. Nye, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Sanborn, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Barton Academy and Graded School

A collection was taken and the meeting ladies canned by the cold pack meth-od six quarts of peaches and six quarts of tomatoes. These will be shipped to Springfield Saturday, and will, we hope, win at least honorable mention. But should they receive no recognition, the young ladies feel fully repaid for their work by the experience they have gained, the knowledge they have acquired, and the interest that has been aroused. Besides the products mentioned, the classes have made crab apple jelly

> This work is especially valuable for the members of the training class as in their work the emphasis is placed on the needs of the rural communities and on what may be done with the equipment possible to any rural school. A study is also being made of food values, of school lunches, and of what hot dishes can be prepared to supplement the cold lunches brought by the children.

> The training class began their work in geography with a study of local geographical conditions. The discussion of the questions:

> How does Barton village serve the town of Barton? How does Barton village serve the state of Vermont? How does Barton village serve the United States? The Afternoon Study club held the J. Christie, Mrs. Myrtie Nye Clark, tion of Barton with reasons for the same; an examination of the topography of the surrounding country and plans to visit the various industries of the village. The first expedition, on Thursday, was to the outlet of Crystal lake and to the dams along the course of the river, for the purpose of ascertaining the source of Barton's water power and of understanding the means by which it is utilized. The class then went to the Peerless, where Mr. Underwood most kindly showed them the workings of the water wheel and explained how the power was conveved to the machinery. Through Mr. Underwood's courtesy, the class will be allowed to make another visit to study more carefully the geographical interests represented by the factory. Notwithstanding the seriousness of purpose, kodaks were not barred from the expedition. Two most engaging pets add to the interest of the training room.

PARENTS' NIGHT. Friday evening, Oct. 20, has been set aside for the parents of the children, who are attending Barton academy and graded school. Every parschool is anxious to have the teachers and parents become acquainted, and even more, because the faculty wishes parents to feel at home in the school and to be at liberty to visit it whenever they desire to do. In this manner the parent may learn what the school is trying to do for the child, and the school may also profit Frank Lacourse is in Burlington this by ascertaining what the individual parent wishes done for his or her own particular child. IDEALS NECESSARY.

Nothing is so practical as the ideal. The ideal is the basis of the practical, the prophecy of the practical, the creator of the practical. The ideal has molded the world from barbarism to semicivilization and will mold it to a civilization worthy of the name. It is the power that molds men and women and institutions and nations as a potter molds his clay. Every book and every nation was an ideal before it was a fact and became a fact because of the creative power of the ideal.-Professor Frank Parsons.
